

THE GRADUATE RESEARCH WORKSHOP 2008

BREAKING THE RESEARCH BARRIER

COMPARATIVE AND TRANSNATIONAL METHODS

Dr. Michael Bruter (London School of Economics)

Quantitative Text Analysis: Researching the Extreme Right in Europe

Dr. Natalia Chaban (University of Canterbury)

Parameters of Comparison: Attitudes towards the European Union in Australasia and the Pacific Region

Prof. Neville Kirk (Manchester Metropolitan University)

The Use of the Press in Transnational History

Friday 4 April 2008

The National Europe Centre is proud to present three internationally renowned academics to discuss their research methods with graduate students of Arts, Social Sciences and related disciplines. This Graduate Research Workshop provides the opportunity for doctoral students to discuss research methods with three established and practising researchers. The purpose of this workshop is to encourage postgraduates to critically examine their own research practices in order to assist them in the writing of their theses.

APPLICATIONS: Applicants are required to send by email half a page outlining their research project and half a page identifying and methodological problems that they have encountered or would like to discuss. There is some financial support available for students travelling to Canberra from outside of the ACT. Please indicate if you require assistance with airfare or accommodation.

CONTACT: Christian Wicke, E: christian.wicke@anu.edu.au, T: +61 (0)2 6125 1490

