

CHuRN CAMPUS SEMINAR SERIES 2007

A cross-disciplinary series to highlight human rights research at ANU

The aim of this seminar series is to share knowledge and provide an understanding of ANU scholars' research in the broad areas of human rights. It is intended that the seminars be introductory and accessible to both students and scholars, providing an opportunity to explore different perspectives.

There will be one seminar each month from March to November (except July) at the National Europe Centre, from 1-2pm (sandwiches and refreshments served from 1.45pm).

1-2pm National Europe Centre 1 Liversidge Street (bldg 67C) ANU

27 March The International Human Rights System
Prof HILARY CHARLESWORTH, RegNet
This lecture will outline human rights institutions and principles developed at the international level and explain their successes and failures.

10 April The ACT Human Rights Act
PENELOPE MATHEW, ANU College of Law

8 May Human Rights: From rhetoric to reality, the democratic way
Prof TOM CAMPBELL, Centre for Applied Philosophy & Public Ethics

26 June Australia's Common Law System: Why so resistant to rights?
Prof PETER BAILEY, ANU College of Law

14 August Citizenship and Rights
Prof KIM RUBENSTEIN, ANU College of Law

11 September 9/11: Six years on
Prof SIMON BRONITT, National Europe Centre

9 October Rights, Power and the Making of the International System
Prof CHRIS REUS-SMIT, RSPAS

13 November Genocide and Human Rights
Dr JOHN DOCKER, Humanities Research Centre

The Cultures of Human Rights Network (CHuRN) is a multi-disciplinary network of ANU scholars working on human rights issues. Established in 2005, CHuRN seeks to promote collaboration, integration, innovation, learning and research in the areas of human rights. For more information go to: <http://law.anu.edu.au/nissl/churn.htm> or email: churn@anu.edu.au

This series is a funded initiative of the:
NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL SCIENCES & LAW, ANU COLLEGE OF LAW and RESEARCH SCHOOL OF HUMANITIES, ANU COLLEGE OF ARTS & SOCIAL SCIENCES