Water colour painting – Advanced (A or B)

Noel Ford

This class is the next choice for those people who have completed both beginners and intermediate courses and would be ideal for those who already have advanced water media skills and would like to develop their painting and conceptual skills.

This class works the one project all semester and varies from semester to semester, with the intention of widening the student's visual language and technical skills.

The programme requires a small research component - this can be from art history, popular culture, literature etc.

Working the one project all semester allows the student to focus fully on the theme being dealt with while observing their development and progress of ideas and technical skills.

The semester will conclude with six to seven paintings using watercolour & supplementary media.
