The Arms of the University granted in 1954

The motto 'Naturam Primum Cognoscere Rerum' is from the poem De Rerum Natura (III, 1072) by Lucretius, Roman poet, philosopher and scientist. It is translated by Cyril Bailey (1946) 'first to learn the nature of things'; an alternative, following Rolfe Humphries 1968 translation of De Rerum Natura, would be 'above all to find out the way things are'.

You can consult The Australian National University Act and the Statutes, Rules and Orders of the University in the University Library or on the web at www.anu.edu.au/cabs under the heading Legislation.

Courses, programs and any arrangements for programs including staffing, as stated in the Undergraduate Handbook or other publication, announcement or advice of the University, are an expression of intent only and are not to be taken as a firm offer or undertaking. The University reserves the right to discontinue or vary such courses, programs, arrangements or staffing at any time without notice.

The UniversityStructure

The Australian National University is an education-intensive research institute of international distinction, established by an Act of Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia. We hold the view that if it is important enough for us to research a field, it is important enough for us to teach that field. ANU has seven Colleges, made up of a network of inter-related research and education Faculties, Research Schools and Centres.

ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences

ANU College of Asia and the Pacific

ANU College of Business and Economics

ANU College of Engineering and Computer Science

ANU College of Law

ANU College of Medicine and Health Sciences

ANU College of Science

The ANU Colleges link teaching and research at undergraduate, graduate coursework and higher degree levels. Research at the highest standards of excellence informs educational programs which prepare students to meet the challenges of the future. An extensive range of bachelor degrees, undergraduate awards and postgraduate programs are taught with undergraduate education concentrated in arts, visual arts, music, economics, business, engineering, information technology, law, medicine and science and related disciplines.

The culture of ANU

The distinguishing culture of ANU is one where the notion of discovery pervades all that we do.

- For all staff, it is the discovery of new and better ways to research, to educate and to support these functions of the University.
- For academic staff, it is the discovery of new knowledge and new insights, and the creative use of these innovations in further research and education.
- For students, it is the discovery of new understanding, in breadth and in depth, in their fields of interest.

Administration

The Vice-Chancellor and President is the chief executive officer of the University. The University is governed by a 15 member Council.

Sources of advice to students

Students with administrative problems or queries should address them to the Registrar. If the problems are academic, students are advised to talk to staff in the relevant ANU College or Faculty Office. They may be advised to make an appointment with the Sub-Dean or another member of academic staff to resolve the issue. If the student is not satisfied that their problem has been given proper consideration, they may approach the College Dean.

The Pro Vice-Chancellor (University Community) is available for consultation with individual students on any matter of concern to them. Students may also seek support and guidance from any of the Support Service Units. These include the Counselling and Health Centre, the Disability Support Unit, the Academic Skills and Learning Centre, the Careers Centre and the Jabal Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Education Centre. Information on the full range of Student Services available may be found on the web at <http://students.anu.edu.au>

The academic year

The dates for all teaching periods and semesters in 2007 and 2008 are set out at the front of this Handbook. Students enrolling in courses taught in the spring, summer or winter sessions and those taught intensively within the semesters should check course start and end dates, examination and result notification dates with the course authority.

University policies

Protection of personal information

This is a statement in relation to the use and disclosure of personal information that is held about a student.

Students are entitled to protection of their privacy, as are staff and others who might have dealings with the University. The University is subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act 1988 (C'ith). Privacy considerations apply to a great deal of information the University may hold about students, including factual data (address, age, enrolment status, etc.), academic progress (examination results, evaluation and assessment and academic standing) and personal welfare (family matters, medical matters, financial matters, etc)

Council members, office holders, and staff of the University, and other authorised persons, may require access at times to personal information about students. To the extent that the information is private, the University will restrict access to those persons who need the information in order to carry out their responsibilities in your personal and/or academic interests as a student of this University.

The University will not disclose personal information about a student to other students, to people outside the University (other than in accordance with any legal or academic obligation or as detailed below) or those persons who have no need of access to the information, unless you tell us, in writing, that you have given consent.

This means that the University does not release any information it holds about students, including addresses or results, even to close relatives without the student's consent. The University does not confirm to a third party that a student is, or has been a student of the University unless the student has a record of graduation, as that is a public document.

There are some exceptions to the general application of this policy that may reflect obligations imposed on the University by law or the requirements for normal operation of the University. These include the following:

- releasing statistical information to the Department of Education, Science and Training (DEST) and other educational bodies
- telling the Australian Tax Office about a student's Commonwealth supported fee liabilities
- publishing examination results and the award of a prize or scholarship
- in the case of an international student or permanent resident, giving the Department of Immigration and Multicultural and Indigenous Affairs, Australian Agency for International Development (AusAID) and DEST certain information which the University is required to release
- providing information to Centrelink
- providing information in response to a subpoena, summons, or written demand from an administrative body, organisation or Commonwealth, State or Territory authority with the power to request the information
- where a student is alleged to have committed, have been involved in, or be aware of a criminal offence, assisting the police by providing them with personal information about that student for the enforcement of the criminal law
- protecting a student or someone else from a serious and imminent threat to their life or health
- notifying a health-related condition, which the University is required to notify under law
- if a student applies to transfer to another tertiary institution, releasing to that institution or a tertiary admissions centre information about that student's academic progress at this University
- releasing examination results, academic and administrative information to a student's home institution if he or she is studying at this University as a cross-institutional or exchange student
- if readmission to, or continued stay at, an Affiliated College or Hall of Residence is dependent on a student's academic results or enrolment status, providing that information to the College or Hall
- providing a list of enrolled students to the returning officer or other appointed electoral bodies for elections of student representatives on official University bodies, official ANU student associations and ANU Union Board

- releasing information pursuant to University Statutes, Rules, Orders, policies and procedures or a contractual obligation to which the student has agreed
- using the personal information about a student in circumstances where the student has commenced proceedings against the University
- publications about research activities undertaken by the University in which a student has been involved
- contacting students for academic and administrative purposes connected with the University.

On graduation from the University, students will become a member of the University's Alumni. As an Alumnus the graduate will be contacted by the University (or external parties appointed by the University) for purposes that include Alumni networking and providing the graduate with benefits, services and details of events provided by ANU Alumni Association or the University.

Dispute resolution

The University has legislation, policies and procedures for the resolution of disputes:

- Principles for Determination of Systems of Assessment and for Consultation
- Assessment Review and Appeals Procedures
- Examinations (The Faculties) Rules.

Detailed statements are available at the following websites:

<http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Policies/index.asp>

<http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Legislation/index.asp>

For International students also see: http://info.anu.edu.au/StudyAt/International_Office/student_life/_rights.asp

Course content, teaching practices and general disputes statements and procedures are available from Faculty or College Offices.

If a student has concerns about other aspects of a course which they are undertaking, and which they are unable to resolve with the lecturer, the student may raise them with the delegated authority (usually the Sub-dean, Associate Dean/Deputy Dean, or Dean of Students) who will endeavour to resolve them informally. If the student is not satisfied with the outcome and wishes to invoke the formal complaints mechanism, the student must lodge the complaint in writing, with the lecturer concerned, with a copy to the Head of Department/Division or, in the case of the ANU Colleges of Asia and the Pacific, Law and Medicine and Health Sciences, to the Dean of the College. If the student is not satisfied with the lecturer's consideration of the complaint, the student may require the complaint to be considered by the Dean of the appropriate ANU College. A copy of the original complaint, together with any other material that the student considers relevant, is to be provided to the relevant College Dean.

Teaching and learning

The University has developed a Code of Practice for Teaching and Learning which describes expectations for students and staff of teaching and learning at ANU. For details of the Code visit the website at http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Codes_of_Practice/index.asp

The University has developed a Code of Practice for Student Academic Honesty which has University-wide currency and which addresses the need for awareness on the part of students and academic staff of the issues of academically honest practice. The Code also sets out the consequences for students who transgress the principle of academic honesty, through academic penalties, to action under the Discipline Rules.

For details of the Code visit the website at http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Codes_of_Practice/index.asp

All students are reminded of their duty of care towards others. A breach of this duty of care may give rise to liability.

Some students may have a disability or medical condition, which places their own safety or welfare, or that of others, at risk during University activities. The University accepts the right of people to privacy. However, such students are advised to consult the Disability Liaison Officer and relevant Faculty or College staff about the nature of any disability and its impact on their studies.

Freedom of information

The provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 1982, as amended, apply to the University. Enquiries should be addressed to the Manager, University Records, Building 10A, Chancery.

The Ombudsman and students*

Canberra students can be affected by the decisions and actions of both Commonwealth and ACT government agencies. You can complain to the Ombudsman if you think an agency's decision was unreasonable, unfair or wrong; or you received misleading advice; or the agency unreasonably delayed making a decision. The Ombudsman investigates complaints informally, in private, and independently of any government agency and free of charge.

Commonwealth agencies include Centrelink, Education, Taxation, the Australian Federal Police and Australia Post, as well as ANU. ACT agencies look after ACT Housing, police, schools, local hospitals, motor vehicle registrations, parking and other fines, and include the Canberra Institute of Technology and the University of Canberra.

The Ombudsman usually expects complainants to try first to sort out the problem with the agency concerned or to use an alternative review mechanism where one exists; for example, the Social Security Appeals Tribunal in matters concerning AUSTUDY or the formal review procedures of the universities and CIT. If your particular problem cannot be dealt with by the Ombudsman, you will be advised who can help you.

Discrimination and harassment

The Australian National University is committed to providing a study environment that is safe, fair and free from discrimination and harassment for all members of the University community.

Discrimination is defined as unfair or inequitable treatment on the basis of a person's race, colour, sex, sexual preference or orientation, marital status, pregnancy or potential pregnancy, status as carer, age, disability, ethnic or national origin, breastfeeding requirements, religious or political affiliation, or any other attributes as defined in any legislation that applies to a University activity.

Harassment is defined as behaviour, comments or images, that are unwelcome, offensive or intimidating, and that, in the circumstances, a reasonable person should have expected would be offensive or intimidating.

Under the University's new policy for grievance resolution, students can make a complaint by following the procedures that are available on the website for dealing with discrimination or harassment. University-wide contacts can assist in explaining the University policy on grievance resolution and how the process works.

Further information is available on the website at www.anu.edu.au/equity/ed/grievance.php or contact the ANU Students' Association on 02 6125 5849.

Students with disabilities

The University recognises that from time to time some students may be affected by long or short-term disabilities or illnesses and that such disabilities may occur following admission.

In any such case, the University will make every effort to address the effects of the disability by adapting the delivery of curriculum, the assessment requirements and the processes of developing academic skills to meet the needs of students with disabilities. Such adaptations to normal course requirements will not compromise the essential nature of the course nor what is deemed to be an essential skill or knowledge.

Where necessary, appropriate support, services, resources and access to assistive technology may be provided or modified to meet the needs of students with disabilities. The provision of additional and specialised resources is administered by the Disability Services Unit.

All intending students with disabilities are invited to contact the Disability Services Unit (T: 02 6125 5036) at the earliest opportunity so that any prior arrangements, such as the placement of lectures and tutorials in appropriate or accessible locations, can be made to facilitate equitable access.

Discipline

Upon enrolling, students sign a declaration that they will observe the Statutes, Rules, Orders, policies, procedures and Codes of the University and the directions of constituted authorities of the University. Students will be expected to observe the terms of this declaration and the University may refuse to admit to lectures or exclude students, for such periods as it thinks fit, any student who commits any serious breach of discipline.

Under the Discipline Rules, 'misconduct' in relation to a student is a reference to conduct on the part of the student that:

- (a) is prejudicial to the good order and government of the University; or
- (b) unreasonably hinders other persons in the pursuit of their studies in the University or in participation in the life of the University; or
- (c) is otherwise reprehensible in a member of the University.

It includes such activities as wilful disruption; wilful damage etc of University property; failure to pay a fee which a student is required to pay under the Fees Rules; plagiarism; cheating and other acts of academic dishonesty.

Where it is found that a student has engaged in misconduct, the penalties which are available to the University under the Discipline Rules range from a reprimand to the more serious penalties of termination of the student's candidature, exclusion from the University, a monetary penalty, and the revoking of an award of the University gained by the student.

A student may appeal against a finding of misconduct.

The Discipline Rules may be found at <http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Legislation/index.asp> or obtained from a Faculty/College Office or Student Administration.

Non-smoking policy

Students are reminded that smoking in all public areas including classrooms is not permitted.

Care of property

Students are requested to observe care in the use of University property. Any student who damages University furniture, fittings or other property will be required to pay for the repair of the damage.

Lost property

Lost property is held by ANU Security (Facilities and Services Division), which is located in the John Yencken Building on Sullivan's Creek Road. Lost items may be handed in at any time and collected between 9am and 3.30pm, Monday to Friday. Inquiries: 02 6125 2249.

Security

ANU Security Officers, who are all trained in First Aid, patrol the Acton campus on foot and in vehicles, 24 hours a day throughout the year. The Security Control Room can be accessed directly from emergency call points throughout the campus or by calling extension 52249 from internal extensions and then following the voice prompts. After hours, Security can also be contacted by dialing 9 from University internal extensions (the redirection is automatic).

After hours ANU UniSafe Bus

The ANU UniSafe Bus operates from Monday to Friday evenings during semester, providing a secure transport service for students and staff. The timetable is available at www.anu.edu.au/facilities/security/unisafe/safety_bus.html

UNISAFEGUARD Patrol Officers

Working in conjunction with ANU Security and the UniSafe Bus are the male and female students who work as UNISAFEGUARD Patrol Officers (UPOs). These students reside on campus and have been trained and licensed in security and first aid; they work in pairs providing foot and mobile escorts from libraries and offices to student residences, other University buildings and carparks, for both students and staff. The Patrol works between 6.30pm and 11.30pm weeknights during term in winter and 6.45pm until 11.45pm weeknights during term in summer. If you need to be accompanied to your residence, building or vehicle after hours for safety reasons, the UPOs can be reached via ANU Security on 02 6125 2249.

UniSafe

Further information on aspects of personal safety awareness is available on the UniSafe homepage at www.anu.edu.au/facilities/security/unisafe

Traffic control

Roads within the University are public streets for the purpose of the Australian Road Rules, ACT Road Transport legislation and ANU Parking and Traffic Statute 2005. ACT Policing has full authority and access to all ANU roads.

All parking on campus is regulated under the provisions of the University Parking and Traffic Statute 2005. This applies to both off-street parking areas and street parking. All parking and traffic signs are authorised by the designated authority and have the force of law.

Permit Parking restrictions apply in most areas of campus. A Parking Permit and Label will be issued to eligible staff and students on completion of a Parking Permit Application form and payment of the prescribed fee. These forms are available from Student Administration or the Parking Administration Office, John Yencken Building, Sullivan's Creek Road. Eligible staff and students may apply on line for a surface permit via ISIS or HORUS. Payment options include BPay. GST is applicable to parking permits and administrative charges relevant to permits and infringements.

Parking Infringement Notices are issued for non-compliance with the Parking and Traffic Statute 2005, which may be found at www.anu.edu.au/cabs/statutes/parkingandtrafficstatute.pdf Fines for parking infringements are payable within 28 days of issuing of the notice. Failure to pay within 28 days will incur an additional administration fee.

Legal proceedings against offenders who fail to pay fines within the prescribed period are dealt with by summons to the ACT Magistrates Court.

Please drive with care and consideration, observe the 40 kph maximum speed limit and parking rules at all times.

Further parking and permit information is available at <http://transport.anu.edu.au>

Information Services at ANU

When your first enrol at ANU you are given a University Identifier, or UniID. This is in the form of 'u1234567', and is printed on your student card. You are also given a computer-generated password. This combination of UniID and password gives you access to all online information services at ANU.

Interactive Student Information Services (ISIS) is the web-based system you use to enrol in specific courses, check your examination results, update your address details, change your password, and keep track of your financial details. You can also view your personal class timetable through ISIS. The system is accessible 24/7 at <http://isis.anu.edu.au>

Every student is provided with an ANU email account. Your ANU email address is simply your UniID# followed by @anu.edu.au. Instructions on setting up your ANU email account can be found in the Student iGuide. The Student iGuide booklet is available in any Library building or you can access it online at <http://students.anu.edu.au/studentitguide>

The Information Commons includes wireless access to the University network and approximately 1,000 computers and numerous printers located across campus in computer labs, libraries and residence halls. All these computers are equipped with high-speed Internet access, over 150 software applications, and non-English character sets. For more details about the

Information Commons go to <http://infocommons.anu.edu.au>

For more information about wireless access and coverage go to <http://wireless.anu.edu.au>

Ask ANU is located on Level 2 of the Chifley Library. Here it is possible to receive one-to-one help with ANU computers, programs, printing, passwords, email and more. Consultants are also available at other Library locations at specified times. More information about Ask ANU is available at <http://ilp.anu.edu.au/infoplace>

For quick answers to your IT queries contact the Help Desk by telephone on extension 59666, or you can log a job online at <https://doihelpdesk.anu.edu.au>

The Information Literacy Program (ILP) offers free training on information technology (eg, using computers and various software packages), information searching techniques (eg, using Library resources, exploring databases and online resources) and information management (eg, copying files, compiling bibliographies). Training is available in small group sessions, in one-to-one sessions, and there is an extensive set of online training modules you can access 24/7. For complete descriptions of all the courses on offer, and to register for these courses, go to <http://ilp.anu.edu.au>

WebCT, which stands for web course tools, is the online system used by many lectures to post information about their course. Content varies, but generally includes things like the course outline, course assignments and due dates, and sometimes even lecture notes. You can access the WebCT pages for courses in which you are enrolled at <http://webct.anu.edu.au/login>

The ANU Library is composed of four main locations and several branch locations containing over two million print items, 53,000 electronic journals and over 150 electronic databases. The Library catalogue is online, and opening hours are posted under Library Services at <http://anulib.anu.edu.au>

The Library also provides students electronic access to ANU exam papers, but only those papers supplied officially to the Library are included in this collection. Exam papers from 1996 onwards are available in PDF (Acrobat) format. A limited number of exam papers from years prior to 1996 are available in HTML format.

Satellite television services are available in the JB Chifley Building, the RG Menzies Building, the Arts Library and the School of Music Library. Services include foreign language and worldwide news together with a range of Asia-Pacific programs.

Application and Admission

Bachelor degrees and undergraduate diplomas

The full list of bachelor degrees and combined programs can be found later in this chapter.

Bachelor degrees and diplomas available to international students

The University has a total enrolment of approximately 2,578 international students from over 90 countries. International students wishing to study in Australia require a student visa and pay tuition fees for their studies, including students already studying in Australian schools who intend to study at undergraduate level. No quotas are placed on the number of international students entering Australia.

New students are admitted at the beginning of the academic year in late February. Second Semester admission in late July is available for a number of degree programs and current advice about these may be obtained from the Admissions Office .

International Student Fees (ISF) for tuition are officially published on a course basis and are adjusted annually.

The fee for each course for each year can be found at <http://info.anu.edu.au/StudyAt/ListCourseFees.asp>

A list of all degree programs offered to international students is available from the Admissions Office.

Student Exchange Program

The Student Exchange Program offered by the University is rewarding both educationally and personally. ANU has established agreements with institutions of high standing in the following countries: Austria, Canada, Chile, China, Colombia, Denmark, France, French Polynesia, Germany, Hong Kong, Italy, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Singapore, Taiwan, Thailand, USA, UK, South Africa, Sweden, Switzerland and Vietnam. ANU is also the only university in Australia to have an exchange with the University of Oxford (post-graduate students only).

Later year undergraduate students should have completed at least one academic year at ANU and achieved a credit average or better in order to participate. Students should have a genuine interest in the people and culture of the country in which they wish to study and will be expected to represent both ANU and Australia while abroad.

The period of exchange will in most cases be for a full academic year (two semesters). Students interested in exchange to a non-English speaking country should note that special arrangements have been made by individual faculties for some exchanges and usually only language major students will be considered.

The University is continually adding new institutions and destinations available for exchange. Students interested in participating in the Exchange Program should consult the International Education Office (IEO), Pauline Griffin Building, for further information. Students interested in specific exchanges within the School of Art or School of Music should contact the Executive Officer, Faculty of Arts for details.

International Visiting Student Program

Students who wish to study at ANU for one semester or one year as part of the Student Exchange program must be nominated by their home university. Students visiting under a formal exchange agreement must be enrolled full-time and pay tuition fees to the home university.

The University offers an excellent undergraduate Study Abroad program for international students who wish to study for either one semester or one academic year at ANU. Study Abroad students enrol on a non-award basis and are able to begin at either the beginning of First Semester (February) or Second Semester (July).

In order to be eligible for the program students must be enrolled at an overseas college or university and have completed at least one year of full time study. All applicants are expected to have a minimum GPA of 3.0 or the equivalent.

Study Abroad and Exchange students may enrol in a range of courses across various disciplines. Applicants to courses offered by the School of Art or School of Music are required to present a portfolio of work, which may include slides, video or audio tapes, or completed compositions.

Joint degrees

The University offers several joint degrees with the National University of Singapore (NUS). These are a Bachelor of Social Sciences (Honours in Actuarial Studies and Economics) in the ANU College of Economics and Commerce and a Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours) in the ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences or the ANU College of Science. Details of the programs are available in the respective College entries of this handbook. Other joint awards with NUS are the Master of Arts (SAES) in the ANU College of Asia and the Pacific, and a PhD in the field of physics in the ANU College of Science. These programs are at postgraduate level.

Graduate study

The University offers a wide range of postgraduate awards and degrees, including graduate certificates, graduate diplomas, master degrees by research and/or coursework, and PhD degrees. See the Graduate prospectus for detailed information or consult the Graduate website at www.anu.edu.au/graduate

Undergraduate admission

Any person seeking enrolment in an undergraduate program of study*, including non-award enrolment, must first have his or her application for admission assessed in relation to minimum admission standards. This Handbook sets out those standards in terms of qualifications held by the majority of applicants and gives details of special schemes offered by the University to assist applicants who may be educationally disadvantaged to qualify for admission. Applicants who hold qualifications other than those mentioned in this Handbook should seek advice on their eligibility for admission to a program of study.

Authoritative information can be given in writing only by the Director, Student and Academic Services. Enquiries should be made in the first instance to the Admissions Office. The University cannot accept responsibility for consequences that may arise if advice is sought from any other source.

F: 02 6125 0751

W: www.anu.edu.au/sas/admissions

Applications for undergraduate admission are processed by the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC) and ANU Admissions Office, as described below. Although the selection procedures used by each office may differ, the selection criteria of the University are the same. A copy of the Undergraduate Awards Rules may be obtained from www.anu.edu.au/cabs/rules

* Other than the MBBS, which has its own entry requirements.

Admission requirements

Applicants seeking enrolment in an undergraduate award program or non-award study must satisfy the standards for admission. The following qualifications are recognised for the purposes of admission:

- an Australian Year 12 qualification or
- a completed Associate Diploma, Diploma, Advanced Diploma or Graduate Certificate at an Australian tertiary institution or
- at least half of a standard full-time year (0.5 FTE) of degree level study at an Australian higher education institution or
- an approved tertiary preparation course at an Australian tertiary institution.

Admission to individual programs is competitive and will be determined by the applicant's level of performance in previous qualifications and satisfaction of any program prerequisites. Further details are set out below or are available from the Admissions Office.

Applicants who hold qualifications other than those listed above should consult the Admissions Office for advice on whether they meet minimum admission requirements.

Admission requirements for school-leavers

Australian Capital Territory

Applicants from the ACT will be assessed for admission on the basis of their Universities Admission Index (UAI), which is calculated on the basis of their performance in the ACT Year 12 Certificate by the ACT Board of Senior Secondary Studies. Information on the ACT Year 12 Certificate and the calculation of the UAI is available from the Board.

New South Wales

Applicants from NSW will be assessed for admission on the basis of their Universities Admission Index (UAI), which is calculated on the basis of their performance in the Higher School Certificate. Information on the Higher School Certificate is available from the NSW Board of Studies. Information on the calculation of the UAI is published in the Universities Admissions Centre Guide.

Other States and Territories

Applications from school-leavers elsewhere in Australia, who have met matriculation requirements within their own State or Territory, will be assessed on the basis of a calculated entrance rank (equivalent to a UAI) derived from their local tertiary entrance rank. See Table 4 in the UAC Guide for conversion examples.

Adult admission based on abridged secondary qualifications

Australian residents who wish to seek admission in 2007 on the basis of abridged secondary qualifications undertaken in 2006 must have been aged 20 years or over by 1 March 2006 or have completed requirements for the award of the equivalent of a Year 10 School Certificate by 31 December 2002, and have not completed their initial continuous secondary schooling.

Applicants must complete the package approved by the relevant State or Territory Board of Studies for mature age students. This includes the 'Mature Age' package of the ACT Year 12 Certificate and the Limited UAI offered within the NSW HSC system. Further information on these programs is available from local secondary education authorities.

Alternatively, applicants who are at least 18 years of age may qualify for admission to the University on the basis of the 'Older Students' package of the ACT Year 12 or the NSW TAFE Tertiary Preparation Certificate.

Adult entry schemes

Australian residents who will be 21 or over by 1 March (for admission in First Semester) or the third Monday in July (for admission in Second Semester) in the year of enrolment will be considered for admission to an undergraduate course on the basis of an approved mature-age entry scheme (including those described below).

University Preparation Scheme (UPS)

Local residents who meet the above age requirements may attempt the UPS. Applicants are assessed on performance in an approved course of study offered by ANU Centre for Continuing Education or ANU College as well as the Special Tertiary Admissions Test (STAT) multiple-choice test administered by UAC.

Special Adult Entry Scheme (SAES)

Applicants who meet the age requirements set out above and who do not already hold a qualification that meets minimum admission requirements may apply through this scheme. Applicants will be selected on performance in the Special Tertiary Admissions Test (STAT) multiple-choice and written English tests taken within the previous three years. Both tests are administered by UAC.

Mature age applicants who have qualifications which meet minimum admission requirements, but whose grades are not high enough to gain a place in their preferred program may also attempt the SAES, subject to the restrictions noted below.

Please note that those who have attempted tertiary studies during 2005–2006 or who have been unsuccessful in the SAES during 2004–2006 are ineligible to apply through this scheme for admission in 2007.

Further details of the UPS and SAES schemes are available from the Admissions Office. Applicants for both schemes must register for the STAT on the registration form in the UAC Guide.

Approved tertiary preparation courses

Successful completion of the Canberra Institute of Technology Certificate in Pre-Tertiary Studies, or an approved tertiary preparation course from another Australian tertiary institution, will satisfy minimum admission requirements. Applicants through these courses must meet the above age requirements. Further information on approved courses and the level of achievement required is available from the Admissions Office.

Admission on the basis of tertiary studies

The University will consider applications from those who have previously undertaken tertiary education in an Australian university or college of advanced education, or who have completed a TAFE Associate Diploma, Diploma, Advanced Diploma or Graduate Certificate. Applicants who have completed secondary qualifications and tertiary study will be assessed for admission on their total qualification package. Intending applicants who have some record of failure at tertiary level should contact the Admissions Office to check their eligibility for admission. It may be necessary to seek special consideration.

Countrywide Access Scheme for applicants who have experienced an educational disadvantage

Admission to the University through the Countrywide Access Scheme is available to school-leavers who have experienced serious disadvantage in their educational preparation for tertiary entrance. This could be because applicants have experienced long term disadvantage during Years 11 and 12 (in some instances disadvantages experienced before Year 11 may be considered). Or it could be because they have experienced a traumatic event over a short term that has or will have a long-term impact on their educational performance. Conditions such as geographical isolation, low family income or long term illness can mean that a student's results fall below the required entrance rank for their chosen program. Please note that the Year 12 qualification does need to have been completed and a UAI or equivalent awarded.

The places available to students through Countrywide are allocated on the basis of relative academic merit rather than the extent or type of disadvantage. All applicants who meet the eligibility requirements of the Scheme will compete for selection on a UAI or equivalent lower than that required for standard entry to the degree programs for which they have applied.

Applicants for the Countrywide Access Scheme must also apply for admission to the University through UAC. An Educational Access Scheme information booklet and application form is available from August from UAC, NSW/ACT schools or from ANU Countrywide Coordinator.

UAC and Countrywide applications close on 29 September 2006. Contact the Countrywide Coordinator on T: 02 6125 3601 or E: Countrywide.office@anu.edu.au

Admission for Indigenous Australians

The University has implemented an Indigenous Australian Admission Scheme to assist Indigenous Australians commence undergraduate studies. Applicants whose qualifications do not meet minimum admission requirements may apply for admission through the Scheme. Applicants are interviewed and complete two assessment tasks involving reading, writing and listening skills. These tasks take place in late November or early December, when applicants visit the University for a Pre-admission Program. The Jabal Centre administers and facilitates the Pre-admission Program and provides academic and social support for students on campus.

Further information and application forms are available from the Jabal Centre. Applications through this scheme close on 31 October 2006. Telephone inquiries should be made to the Jabal Centre on 02 6125 3520.

English language competence

Applicants who hold qualifications obtained in a language other than English will be required to demonstrate English language proficiency to undertake university study. The University accepts satisfactory results in the International English Language Testing Service (IELTS) or the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) taken within two years of application. Minimum requirements for the IELTS are: an overall band score of 6.5 with a minimum band score of 6 in each band; and for the TOEFL: a score of 570 on the paper based test or 230 on the computer based test, plus a Test of Written English (Essay) score of 4.5. Higher scores are required for admission to programs in Law.

Applicants should check with the Admissions Office if they have other evidence of English proficiency.

The ANU College offers English language programs and offers an English language program (ELICOS) that is a preparatory English for Academic purposes program. None of these provide credit towards a degree but are accredited by the National ELICOS Accreditation Scheme (NEAS) and the Australian National Training Authority (ANTA). We do sometimes have conditional offers where entry to ANU is subject to satisfactory passing of these programs through the College but again, there is no credit given towards the ANU degree. See the ANU College website at www.anucollege.com.au for more information.

Distinguished Scholars

The Faculties of Asian Studies, Engineering and Computer Science, and Science offer a Distinguished Scholar Program, which provides customised undergraduate training for students with outstanding Year 12 results. For more information contact the relevant College office. See also the Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours) programs in the Faculties of Arts, Asian Studies and Science.

Admission with credit

The ANU Colleges grant as much credit (status, or advanced standing) for tertiary studies successfully completed elsewhere as can be accommodated within the structure of the particular award. The credit may be specified or unspecified. Unspecified credit may be expressed either in general terms or in relation to a particular subject area. Where courses undertaken in previous studies correspond closely enough to those taught at this University, specified credit may be granted. Other courses are granted unspecified credit.

The appropriate faculty will determine, on the basis of work already completed, the work that is required to complete the degree. To meet these requirements, it may not be possible for the faculty to grant credit for all the work already completed.

Applicants for credit within the School of Art, School of Music or the Centre for New Media Arts must lodge an Application for Credit form with the Faculty of Arts by 31 October of the year of application for admission. Applicants will be required to undergo interviews, tests and auditions, or present and discuss folios of completed works.

Students wishing to take out an ANU degree will be required to successfully complete at least the equivalent of one year's full-time enrolment, which must include sufficient later year courses.

Because of their professional requirements, the granting of credit in the degrees of Bachelor of Laws and Bachelor of Commerce is subject to different criteria; students should contact the appropriate faculty office. Credit is not granted towards the degrees of Bachelor of Medicine, Bachelor of Surgery.

The University has procedures for the review of its credit decisions. For details refer to the policy Review of Decision Made by a Dean under the Bachelor Degrees Rules on the University's Policies website at <http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/procedures>

Application procedures

The University is a participating institution in the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC). Australian citizens, permanent residents and New Zealand citizens should apply through UAC for all undergraduate award programs. International students who are attempting an Australian Year 12 qualification in Australia also apply through UAC. Applicants to new undergraduate programs that are not listed in the UAC course databases should contact the Admissions Office for advice on application procedures.

Note: to apply for admission to the MBBS degree program please consult the Faculty of Medicine entry in this Handbook.

Application through the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC)

All students currently attempting Year 12 or the International Baccalaureate in Australia should apply using either the UAC Apply-by-Telephone or Apply-by-Web facilities by 29 September 2006. All other applicants must apply using UAC Form B or the Apply-by-Web facility by 29 September 2006. UAC Guides including the application Form B are available in August from major newsagencies throughout Australia or by post from

Universities Admissions Centre (NSW and ACT)

T: 02 9752 0200

W: www.uac.edu.au

The cost of the 2007 Guide is $19 over the counter, with an additional charge if you request UAC to mail a copy. UAC also charges an application processing fee - see the UAC Guide for current fees and charges.

Applications submitted after the 29 September closing date will attract a late fee. Late applicants will only be accepted by UAC until 1 February 2007 on a sliding late fee scale. A person awaiting notification of current examination results should still submit a form before the closing date.

As well as lodging a UAC application form, applicants for visual arts, digital arts or music programs must also contact the Faculty of Arts on 02 6125 2898 to arrange an audition/interview. Please note that if you wish to add one of these programs after 31 October 2006 you should contact the Faculty of Arts first.

Graduates of ANU, currently enrolled ANU students expecting to complete degree requirements by the end of the current academic year and former ANU students who no longer hold a current place in a program of study, must apply for admission to undergraduate programs, including the Graduate Law program (LLB(G)) through UAC. Current ANU students (including those on approved program leave) wishing to transfer to another ANU program must apply direct to the University (not through UAC).

Direct application to the University

Those applying to enrol in:

- non-award courses
- final honours year
- Indigenous Australian Admission Scheme
- the Australian National Internships Program
- Law Internship Program
- BMus (Specialist)
- MBBS (see Faculty of Medicine entry)

must apply direct to the University. Intending applicants should contact the Admissions Office in August or September for information about closing dates.

Application forms are available from late August from the Admissions Office in the Pauline Griffin Building.

W: www.anu.edu.au/sas/forms

Postal requests may be made to:

The Admissions Office

The Australian National University

Canberra ACT 0200

and from the Faculty of Medicine website at <http://medicalschoo.anu.edu.au/admission/admission.asp>. Details of closing dates and late application charges (if applicable) for direct applications are listed on the application form.

Application forms should be completed carefully with full and complete information. The giving of false or incomplete information may lead to processing delays and refusal of the application or cancellation of the enrolment.

All applicants will be advised in late January or early February of the result of their application and, if made an offer, will be required to register their enrolment in person during a specified period. Registration also includes completion of HECS-HELP or Domestic Tuition Fee procedures.

Note: Direct applications for admission to degree programs (not those programs listed above), accompanied by a late application fee, will only be accepted after the final UAC closing date of 1 February 2007. The University makes very few (if any) offers to degree programs after the UAC process is finalised. Check with the Admissions Office first.

Mid-year admission

Subject to places being available, it is usually possible to commence studies in Second Semester (July) in most programs. However, the number of courses available to new students may be limited. Intending applicants should consult this Handbook and the relevant ANU College Office. Applications for mid-year entry are usually made through UAC. For details on application procedures and closing dates, please contact the Admissions Office in early May.

Deferment of offer

Deferment is available for up to one year for all undergraduate programs (with the exception of those offered by the School of Art, School of Music and the Centre for New Media Arts). An applicant wishing to defer entry who has received an offer of a place must either notify the University by the end of the registration period of the intention to defer or, if enrolment has been registered, by the census date of the first semester of enrolment. Requests for deferment should be made in writing to the Admissions Manager (application methods will be advised when the offer is made), or online at www.anu.edu.au/sas/admission/deferment/index.php. Deferment lapses if tertiary studies are undertaken.

To secure a place in 2008, an applicant granted deferment for 2007 must follow the instructions contained in their approval of deferment letter.

Application for non-award studies (applications direct to the University and not through UAC).

Applicants for non-award enrolment must meet normal admission requirements and must apply direct to the University by 31 January 2007 for First Semester enrolment. Admission may also be approved for Second Semester or Spring, Summer and Winter Sessions. Contact the Admissions Office for application deadlines.

Individual faculties will assess applications for non-award studies on their merits. Admission is not guaranteed. Non-award students enrolled for any course will be entitled to the same privileges and will be subject to the same discipline and obligations as apply to students proceeding to a degree.

Non-award students are admitted either as Fee-Paying Students or as Cross-Institutional Students.

Fee-paying students must pay a Domestic Tuition Fee for each course in which they are enrolled.

Cross-institutional students are students whose non-award courses are to be counted towards an award of another tertiary institution. Cross-institutional students are charged a Student Contribution amount (instead of Domestic Tuition Fees) if they are enrolled in a Commonwealth Supported Place at their home institution. Cross-institutional students applying for Summer Session courses in Law or Economics and Commerce should contact the respective College for advice about fee liability.

Note: From 2005, ANU has been forced to restrict the number of Cross-Institutional Students it admits. Students at other universities should not plan their 2007 studies on the assumption that they will be able to enrol at ANU.

International applicants

An international applicant is an applicant who is not:

- an Australian citizen or permanent resident
- a New Zealand citizen.

International students must meet the standards for admission to a program of study, including English language requirements. Details of educational requirements based on Australian qualifications and the English language requirements are set out in the Undergraduate Admissions section above.

International applicants are not eligible to apply on the basis of abridged secondary qualifications or through the Special Adult Entry Scheme or University Preparation Scheme. Details of admission requirements based on overseas qualifications are available from the Admissions Office

International applicants undertaking Year 12 or International Baccalaureate study in Australia must apply through UAC. All other international students should apply direct to the University.

Please note: An offer to an international applicant will become invalid if that applicant becomes a permanent Australian resident before enrolment. In such cases another offer may be made, subject to quotas for Australian residents.

Application forms are available from the Admissions Office and from the website at www.anu.edu.au/sas/forms Where possible, direct applications for 2007 entry for international students should be submitted by 14 November 2006 for First Semester, 2007, and May 31 2007 for Second Semester, 2007 admission. Late applications will be considered subject to vacancies, offers are made progressively and upon receipt of application.

Applicants must obtain information from the nearest diplomatic mission regarding visa requirements for study in Australia and the procedures to be followed by international applicants. International applicants should note that admission is available only on a fee-paying basis.

English language competence

Please refer to the Undergraduate Admissions entry above for information on English language competence.

Medical insurance

All international students are required to have health insurance while studying in Australia. Information is available from the Overseas Student Health Cover Officer on telephone +61 2 6125 4643.

International student services

Information regarding student services available through the International Education Office is listed in the Student Services section of this Handbook.

Open Day

At ANU Open Day on Saturday 25 August you will be able to tour the University's world-class facilities, meet staff and chat with current students. Displays across campus will showcase the many courses ANU offers. All University areas will have general booths in one central location, in addition to activities in their own buildings across the campus. Talks on courses will be held throughout the day. For more information visit www.anu.edu.au/psi/penday

Orientation Week

Orientation Week provides an opportunity for students to familiarise themselves with ANU campus, to learn about student and administrative student services, to join student clubs and societies and to participate in numerous social activities organised by the Students' Association. Introductory lectures are held by each College. They provide a good opportunity to meet lecturers, find lecture theatres and find out more about what courses are on offer.

Students are able to join a large range of sporting, social, religious and academic clubs and societies. Students are encouraged to participate in the numerous social events held during O-Week. A program detailing events for the week is usually available towards the end of January.

Mid-Year Orientation

Students commencing programs of study in Second Semester are encouraged to participate in the one-day Mid-Year Orientation, which provides an overview of ANU services and Colleges and an introduction to university study. Mid-Year Orientation takes place in the week preceding the first teaching week of second semester.

Programs and Awards Statute

The rules set by the University Council which relate to programs and awards, include the:

- Undergraduate Awards Rules*
- Examinations (The College) Rules
- Academic Progress Rules

(*subject to University Council approval on 8 December 2006, these Rules will replace the Bachelor Degrees Rules, Undergraduate Diplomas Rules and the Undergraduate Admissions Rules from First Semester, 2007.)

Enrolment and Re-Enrolment

Inquiries about enrolment should be directed to the Student Administration section of the University (T: 02 6125 3339). Further information is also available in the Student Enrolment and Administrative Procedures Guide (SEAP Guide) available from Student Administration and on the internet at www.anu.edu.au/sas/SEAP_guide

Students should read the Undergraduate Handbook carefully, and, if necessary, seek guidance in the selection of courses or in the choice of a degree program from staff in the relevant College Office. Those seeking credit (advanced standing) should consult the relevant College Office for advice.

Program structure

The terminology used by the University in all publications, including this Handbook, is defined below:

Program: a structured academic program of study normally leading to the award of a degree, diploma or certificate; eg Bachelor of Arts program

Course: a discrete entity of study in a subject, normally of one semester's duration; eg HIST1015 Ends of Empire

Unit: an indicator of the value of a course within the whole program. Most undergraduate courses are worth six units. A full-time student is expected to enroll in 24 units per semester (48 units over two semesters).

All undergraduate award programs are defined in terms of the number of units required to qualify for the award, eg the Bachelor of Arts has a total value of 144 units. Details are found in the appropriate sections of the Handbook.

Combined degree programs

A combined degree program is designed to enable a student to graduate with two awards in less time (with fewer units) than would be required if the degrees were taken in separate programs.

The total number of units required to complete the majority of combined degree programs is 240, normally taken over five years (10 semesters). Students who are unsure of the requirements should discuss their program with the appropriate College officers.

Program requirements in the Handbook

The Handbook is now, under legislation, the only authoritative source of program requirements and course details. These are found in the various College chapters and in the Combined Programs section. The Undergraduate Handbook will be updated as appropriate from time to time. The authoritative version at any time can be found at <http://info.anu.edu.au/StudyAt>

Full-time and part-time enrolment

A student can opt to be full-time or part-time each semester. A student enrolled for the semester in 18 units or more is deemed to be full-time.

Enrolment of new students

Offers of places will usually be made in January/ February and June/July. Students who receive an offer of a place in an award program at ANU, will be sent information with their offer on how to accept and to register their enrolment.

Registration of enrolment (continuing/re-enrolling students)

The Student Enrolment and Administrative Procedures (SEAP) Guide includes information on the following:

- how to re-enrol
- payment of fees/HECS-HELP
- program transfers
- leave of absence from your program of study
- how and when you may change your enrolment
- cross-institutional enrolment
- examination and assessment procedures
- academic progress requirements
- graduation information and procedures.

All re-enrolling students, including students returning from leave of absence or studying off campus, must enrol via ISIS.

Re-enrolment via ISIS for both semesters in 2007 will open in late November and enrolment after Friday 26 January 2007 will attract a late fee.

Students who fail to re-enrol, or who have not obtained formal approval for leave of absence, will lose their place in the program, and must apply for readmission to the same program or a new program of study through the Universities Admissions Centre.

Program transfers

Undergraduate students seeking to transfer to a new undergraduate program of study in 2007 must apply to the Enrolments Office by 8 December 2006. Late applications will attract a late fee (see Application Procedures in this Handbook). No applications will be accepted after 2 February 2007.

Students seeking to transfer programs must not re-enrol via the web until advised of the outcome of their application.

Change of address

It is essential that a change in a student's mailing address, permanent home address or the address of a person to be contacted in the event of an emergency is recorded promptly on ISIS by the student. The mailing address is the address to which the University will normally send all correspondence relating to a student's enrolment. A student's home address is the place of permanent residence and both addresses must be recorded on ISIS. A temporary mailing address may also be recorded. A separate billing address may be recorded and student fees invoices will be mailed to this address but the student is still responsible for ensuring that the fees are paid by the due date. Students should update their address via the web at <http://isis.anu.edu.au> or, if that is not possible on a Change of Address/Phone Details form lodged with Student Administration.

Lecture timetables

The lecture timetable is available on the internet at <http://timetable.anu.edu.au> Students should check the timetable periodically as scheduled lecture times may be changed.

Commonwealth supported students (formerly HECS students)

In 2002 the Australian Government conducted a review of Australia's higher education system. The Government's response to the review was announced in the policy statement, Our Universities: Backing Australia's Future. For details of these reforms refer to the website at www.backingaustraliasfuture.gov.au/reforms.htm

Despite these reforms the fundamental principles of the Higher Education Contribution Scheme (HECS) have not changed. Under HECS, which was in place before 2005, the Australian Government set the contribution amount that students were required to pay and students studied in HECS places that were subsidised by the Australian Government.

These HECS places will continue to be provided but will be called Commonwealth supported places. From 2005, Higher Education Providers are able to determine student contribution amounts for these Commonwealth supported places within ranges from $0 up to a maximum amount set by the Australian Government. All students enrolled in a Commonwealth supported place are required to complete on-line a Request for Commonwealth Support and HECS-HELP at the time of initial enrolment in their program. Proof of citizenship or residency may also be required when enrolling. If a student changes program a new request form for the new program must be completed on-line before the first course census date for the new program.

For continuing ANU students who commenced an undergraduate program of study in 1997 or later, and those students commencing an undergraduate award program in 2005 or 2006, the following are the student contribution amounts for the equivalent of a full-time student load (per EFTSL) in 2007:

- $3,998 Arts, Behavioural Science, Humanities, Social Studies, Visual and Performing Arts, and foreign languages
- $5,694 Administration, Agriculture, Business Computing, Economics, Engineering, Mathematics, Processing, Renewable Resources and Science
- $6,665 Law, Legal Studies and Medical Science.

For new students commencing in 2007 or students who transfer from their current program to a new program in 2007, the following are the student contribution amounts for the equivalent of a full-time student load (per EFTSL):

- $4,996 Arts, Behavioural Science, Humanities, Social Studies, Visual and Performing Arts, and foreign languages
- $7,118 Administration, Agriculture, Business Computing, Economics, Engineering, Mathematics, Processing, Renewable Resources and Science
- $8,333 Law, Legal Studies and Medical Science.

Contributions are calculated at the course census date. For courses taken in First Semester this will be 31 March and for courses taken in Second Semester 31 August. If these dates fall in a weekend payments must be finalised by the previous working day. Census dates for students enrolled in non-standard sessions are available on the web at <http://info.anu.edu.au/StudyAt/listcoursefees.asp>

Each semester students have a choice of either paying their contribution upfront by the date set by the University and receiving a 20 per cent discount or deferring their payment and paying the full amount through the taxation system. Students electing to defer their student contribution payments through the taxation system are eligible to make partial upfront payments (minimum payment of $500). See the Information for Commonwealth supported students-2007 booklet for details. Due dates for payment of student contribution up-front amounts for 2007 are:

- First Semester- Friday 09 March
- Second Semester- Friday 03 August.

Holders of permanent humanitarian visas who have not become Australian citizens within one year of meeting Australian citizenship requirements, permanent residents and New Zealand citizens who are not Australian citizens must pay their student contribution upfront without the 20 per cent discount.

Under the changes introduced in 2005 permanent residents are no longer eligible to choose how they pay their student contributions. You will be required to make payments upfront without a discount.

It is a condition of new or continuing enrolment at the University that the procedures associated with HECS-HELP are completed by the due dates. Failure to do so will cause cancellation of enrolment.

In order to share Commonwealth funds for higher education more equitably across the community, the Australian Government has introduced the Student Learning Entitlement (SLE). From 1 January 2005, all Australian citizens, New Zealand citizens and holders of permanent visas will receive SLE, giving them access to seven years equivalent full-time study in a Commonwealth supported place (to be extended on a pro rata basis if studying part-time). Continuing students who are part way through their program of study will also receive the same amount of SLE.

Certain categories of students are exempt from payment under the Scheme. These include:

- non-award undergraduate students (unless studying on a cross-institutional basis as part of a Commonwealth supported program at another institution)
- international students.

These students are normally liable for a tuition fee instead of HECS-HELP, and tuition fee details are available on the web at <http://info.anu.edu.au/StudyAt/listcoursefees.asp>

Further details about Commonwealth supported students are contained in a booklet produced by Department of Education, Science and Training and available to all students from Student Administration.

Booklist

The booklist for each course will be available from departments and centres from about November.

Examination and Assessment

Assessment

It is University policy that lecturers should discuss with their class at the beginning of each year or semester, as appropriate, possible and practicable means of assessing courses. Broad assessment guidelines are published in this Handbook as a guide to students.

Students with a disability should contact the Disability Services Unit (DSU) well in advance of requiring alternative assessment arrangements. Students who are not registered with the DSU should collect a Special Examinations Arrangements form from the Examinations and Graduations Office, complete it, and hand it back in at the Examinations and Graduations Office with appropriate supporting documentation. This application should be submitted no later than ten working days before your scheduled examination.

Eligibility to be examined

All coursework students who have met the assessment guidelines for their respective courses are eligible to sit an examination. Each eligible student will be admitted to an examination venue subject to identification by means of their ANU student card. Detailed procedures for the conduct of examinations are set out in the Student Enrolment and Administrative Procedures (SEAP) Guide 2007 (www.anu.edu.au/sas).

Entry to an examination is subject to the approval of the Course Authority. Students may be excluded from sitting for an examination if they have not attended lectures or performed practical or other work as prescribed by the department, school or centre concerned.

The Examinations (The College) Rules (www.anu.edu.au/cabs/rules/index.html) contains provisions for students who fail to attend a scheduled examination, or whose studies are affected by illness or other means. Detailed information is provided in the SEAP Guide.

Examination timetables can be viewed at <http://timetable.anu.edu.au>

Supplementary examinations

A student eligible to sit a supplementary examination in a course will be notified by receiving a course grade of PX, which means a student is eligible to sit a supplementary examination. You should apply in writing to the respective Course Authority within seven working days of the results being posted if you wish to undertake supplementary assessment.

The policy statement on Supplementary Examinations can be found at <http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Policies/index.asp>

Misconduct in assessment

Misconduct in an examination, that is in any task required for the assessment of the student's performance in a course or a program of study, can result in serious consequences for a student, such as failure in the course, a mark penalty, or in some circumstances disciplinary measures.

Misconduct in examination is defined in the Discipline Rules (www.anu.edu.au/cabs/rules/index.html) as including:

- (i) cheating

- (ii) plagiarism (including copying, paraphrasing or summarising, without appropriate acknowledgement, the words, ideas, scholarship or intellectual property of another person, whether or not it is with the knowledge or consent of that other person)

[Note: Plagiarism may also take place when direct use of others' words is not indicated, for example by inverted commas or indentation, in addition to appropriate citation of the source.]

- (iii) except with the approval of the prescribed authority, submitting for an examination any work previously submitted for examination
- (iv) failing to comply with the University's instructions to students at, or in relation to, an examination
- (v) acting, or assisting another person to act, dishonestly in or in connection with an examination
- (vi) taking a prohibited document into an examination venue.

Examination results

Students are reminded that course results are determined not only by their performance in written examinations, but also by the satisfactory completion of essays, class exercises and practical work as prescribed by the ANU College concerned.

Students who cancel their enrolment in a course should note that withdrawal after the relevant date (listed in the SEAP Guide) might be construed as a failure.

Students must not communicate with an examiner in a course between the time of attempting the examination and the formal issue of results for that examination.

All official examination results will be published via ISIS (<http://isis.anu.edu.au>).

Assessment grades

A uniform grading system was established throughout the University for all courses effective since 1 January 1994. The mark range is set out below. The mark as well as the grade obtained is disclosed on the transcripts of academic record and the academic history on the ISIS website. This mark range must not be equated with any grade awarded prior to 1994.

Honours grades

First Class Honours	(80-100)
Second Class Honours Division A	(70-79)
Second Class Honours Division B	(60-69)
Third Class Honours	(50-59)

Final pass grades

High Distinction	(80-100)
Distinction	(70-79)
Credit	(60-69)
Pass	(50-59)
Passed at supplementary examination	(50)
Course requirements satisfied
Higher Level Performance (Faculty of Medicine only)

Final fail grades

Fail	(0-49)
Not completed fail
Withdrawn with failure

Assessment review procedures

Students who wish to query results of an assessment are advised to first raise the matter informally with the member of staff responsible for the assessment concerned. If after consultation a student still believes there is grounds that the result is improper, a request for a review of the assessment concerned may be made in writing to the Dean of the relevant ANU College. It is then the responsibility of the Dean to investigate the matter and ensure that assessment has been properly and fairly carried out. Students are entitled to a statement of the reasons for the final decision; they may ask to see any relevant documentation that has been generated by the progress of the review.

See: Assessment Review and Appeals Procedures at <http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Policies/index.asp> and the Examinations (The College) Rules at www.anu.edu.au/cabs/rules

Assessment arrangements for students from language backgrounds other than English

The University recognises that students from language backgrounds other than English may encounter difficulties in the first year of enrolment, which native speakers of English do not experience.

Most students from language backgrounds other than English will not need assistance under the assessment arrangements policy. For those students who are deemed eligible and require assistance, the support will be for a transitional period to enable the student to acquire the necessary level of language competency. It is expected that students will take responsibility for ensuring that their level of competence in English is sufficient for their chosen course of study, and for engaging help in developing proficiency with the English language according to their particular needs.

Students from language backgrounds other than English who wish to apply for assessment concessions will be expected to present early in the first semester of their program of study to the relevant Course Authority and the ANU College, which offers the award program in which they are enrolled.

Identifying as a student from language backgrounds other than English does not, of itself, entitle students to assessment concessions. The Course Authority will assess the student's applications and determine what, if any, concessions are appropriate. The decision made in relation to one course will not necessarily be the same as for another course. For specific information on how to apply for assessment concessions students should contact their respective ANU College office.

The policy statement on Assessment Arrangements for Students from Language Backgrounds Other Than English may be found at <http://info.anu.edu.au/policies/Policies/index.asp>

Academic progress

Uniform minimum academic progress criteria apply across all ANU Colleges. The policy requires that students who have failed a course twice not be permitted to enrol in the course again, except with the approval of the relevant Course Authority. Secondly, the policy states that students who fail more than fifty per cent of the unit value of the courses in which they are enrolled for a semester will be considered to have performed poorly. The first occasion on which students infringe this rule they will be sent a 'Warning' letter. Students who infringe this rule for a second time in the same program will be asked to 'Show Cause' as to why they should be permitted to continue in the program. Failure to show satisfactory cause may result in a number of consequences including that the student be excluded from the program, transferred to another program, have their load altered, or be referred for academic support.

Details of the Academic Progress Rules may be found on the website at www.anu.edu.au/cabs/rules/index.html In addition to the above general academic progress rules the Schools of Art and Music (ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences) and the ANU College of Medicine and Health Sciences have more specific academic progress rules. Students in these academic areas should contact the respective ANU College offices for further information.

Conferring of Awards

Conferring ceremonies are an important celebration of students' achievements during their university career. These ceremonies will take place for all awards (including those in the School of Art and the School of Music) in mid-December and mid-July to enable those students leaving the ACT on conclusion of their studies to attend in person.

All coursework and research students enrolled in the Spring Session of the year prior to graduation, Summer Sessions and the First Semester of their completion year who have met the minimum requirements of their program will be automatically scheduled to have their award(s) conferred at the July Graduation Session. Those enrolled in Winter Session and/or Second Semester of their completion year who have met the minimum requirements of their program will be automatically scheduled to have their award(s) conferred at the December Graduation Session.

Students required to submit an Application for Conferring of Award form by the due date are:

- (i) ANU students enrolled elsewhere on a Cross Institutional or Exchange basis
- (ii) students who satisfied the requirements of their program prior to Winter 2006 and who wish to have their award conferred at the July 2007 Graduation Session.

Since eligibility for conferring for most graduands will be conditional on satisfactory completion of award requirements in the same semester as the ceremonies, it is essential that students are familiar with graduation information which can be found at www.anu.edu.au/sas/graduation

Financial Assistance

Financial assistance from Centrelink

The Commonwealth Government's Centrelink helps with financial assistance for people who are studying. Students may be entitled to financial assistance under a number of schemes. There may also be ancillary payments like rent assistance. For more information contact Centrelink on 132 490, or visit their website www.centrelink.gov.au

ANU Student Loan Fund

The University, in association with The Credit Union of Canberra Ltd, has developed a loan scheme for students in short-term financial need. Loans are approved by either the Undergraduate Student Loan Fund Committee or Postgraduate Student Loan Fund Committee. All meetings of the Committee are strictly confidential. Funds are disbursed by The Credit Union and repayments, at a subsidised rate of interest, made to it. The conditions and amounts of loans are flexible to cater for the needs of individual students, but loans are not available to pay tuition fees. Undergraduate students may obtain further information and application forms from the Students' Association office, in the Student Facilities Building (Building 17A). Postgraduate and research students may obtain further information and application forms from the Postgraduate and Research Students' Association office, at 26 Balmain Crescent opposite University House.

University Accommodation Services

Our guarantee for new undergraduate students

ANU guarantees accommodation to all new full-time undergraduates who live outside the Canberra region. So if you get an offer to study at ANU, you will be offered a place in an ANU Hall, affiliated Residential College or an approved accommodation provider (such as UniLodge @ ANU). See our website for the full details.

On-campus accommodation

The Halls and Residential Colleges offer you a unique opportunity to learn even more than is taught in lectures. You will meet students from around the world and Australia studying many academic disciplines at undergraduate and postgraduate levels. They provide you with the chance to become members of close-knit communities, with sporting, social and cultural activities and the chance to meet and make a diverse group of friends.

All Halls and Residential Colleges offer single fully furnished bedrooms to both men and women. All residences are centrally heated and carpeted, and each bedroom has its own telephone with voicemail. The Halls and Residential Colleges offer facilities such as music rooms, computer labs, libraries, television rooms and reception rooms along with fully equipped laundries.

UniLodge @ ANU, an approved residence situated on the ANU Campus, offers brand new fully furnished apartments to undergraduate and postgraduate students.

Support

Halls and Residential Colleges provide a range of pastoral care services and academic assistance programs to help students in their studies. Senior residents and staff also assist students with adjusting to life on campus. Halls and Residential Colleges provide a range of pastoral care services and academic assistance programs to help students in their studies. Senior residents and staff also assist students with adjusting to life on campus.

Excellent location

The ANU campus is located close to the heart of Canberra with a variety of cinemas, restaurants, shops and theatres all within walking distance. Although close to the city, the open park-like grounds of the campus provide an idyllic setting for study or leisure. All residences are located on campus except for Fenner Hall, which is located 2.5 km north of the campus, on Northbourne Avenue. During the academic term, a free University bus service operates between Fenner Hall and the campus in the mornings, lunchtimes and evenings, Monday to Friday. Public transport is also available between Fenner Hall and the city centre, and it is about a 10-minute bicycle ride to campus.

Which hall or residential college?

While all ANU Halls, affiliated Residential Colleges and approved accommodation providers offer a unique experience for living on or near the campus, a key consideration will be whether you would prefer catered accommodation or to cook your own meals.

Catered accommodation	Self-catered accommodation
Bruce Hall	Burton and Garran Hall

How do I register?

Anyone thinking of studying at ANU should register for accommodation as soon as possible. There is no fee and no penalty if you decide to live elsewhere. Your first step is to let us know which Halls or Residential Colleges you'd most like to live in. Just complete our online registration form and we will be in touch. You only need to apply once, just email uni.accom@anu.edu.au if you need to change or update your application at any time.

When do I register?

Registrations for Semester 1, 2007 open on 26 August 2006 and close on 17 January 2007.

Registrations for Semester 2, 2007 open in April 2007 and close in mid-June 2007.

If you have applied to study at ANU, you should immediately apply for accommodation. Do not wait until you have received an offer of admission to the University. Your application for accommodation is independent of your application for admission. Do not arrive without making prior arrangements.

How much does it cost?

In 2007 self-catered accommodation will start from $141.50 per week, Catered accommodation ranged from $239-$276 per week. Charges at UniLodge @ ANU will start from $158 per week. For more details on our fees, please visit our website. The Halls and Residential Colleges have different charges for phone and internet usage. It is also important to budget for transport, textbooks and entertainment expenses.

How are residents chosen?

Halls select residents from large numbers of applications. They look for a balance of backgrounds, trying to ensure a diverse community. You are asked to provide your top four preferences for accommodation. If you miss out on your first preference, we'll try and place you in your second or third. We cannot promise that students will get placed in a residence of their preference, so students should be willing to accept any ANU-approved accommodation that they are offered.

Accommodation offers will be made via email. Please ensure you have a valid email address and check your mail regularly, especially after accepting your academic offer.

Off-campus accommodation

If living in a Hall or Residential College is not for you, then UAS should still be your first call for assistance. UAS can help you look for alternative accommodation such as renting an apartment, a room in a share house or boarding with a local family.

Housing online

Housing Online is a free service provided by UAS which acts as an electronic notice board, advertising vacancies available to the University community through private landlords or real estate agents. There are also links from here to other useful Internet resources. The site contains a comprehensive listing of share accommodation, accommodation available, accommodation wanted and opportunities for private board.

ANU Rental Guarantee Scheme

Most real estate agents rely on rental history or rental reference to assess an applicant's suitability for a property and ability to pay rent. If this is your first time renting, you will not have a rental history or rental reference. To help overcome this hurdle, UAS have introduced ANU Rent Guarantee Scheme to assist first-time renters. Through this scheme, ANU guarantees agents/landlords to cover any monies owing for rent arrears or repairs after the property has been vacated.

Student Services

Jabal Centre

The Jabal Centre is located on the lower floor of Melville Hall. The Centre is for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander undergraduate and postgraduate students and offers study and tutorial rooms, computer lab, seminar room, library and students' common room.

The Centre provides an identifiable Indigenous Australian presence on campus. It is a focus for Indigenous Australian activities, and for the education of other members of the University community about Indigenous Australian issues.

The Centre provides a first point of contact for all enquiries about Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander student matters in the University.

The Jabal Centre staff provide:

- admission to the University via the Indigenous Australian Admission Scheme
- academic, administrative and social support for the University's Indigenous Australian students
- appropriate orientation to the wider University and to the particular departments students are entering
- encouragement in academic excellence
- advice on Indigenous scholarships and cadetships
- supplementary tutoring in specific disciplines
- assistance in arranging accommodation
- help in dealing with Government departments, University faculties and administration.

The academic and social support focus of the Centre is an important part of helping to build a successful Indigenous Australian community at ANU.

Careers Centre

The Centre provides information on casual and part-time employment for students while they are studying and information on graduate employment for those making the transition from study to work. Students at all levels of their courses can review the career implications of their course choice, the nature of graduate employment, and the possibilities of further vocational and professional training.

Final year students, especially, are helped in the business of job seeking through practical advice on job applications and interviews, information on vacancies and employing organisations, workshops and contact arranged with prospective employers, including campus presentations and interviews.

A Careers Library contains comprehensive information about career areas and employers of graduates in Australia and overseas. The Centre also has a web page on which graduate and casual employment is advertised. Current ANU students are also strongly advised to register on Career Hub, the centre's interactive job search system.

The Centre is staffed by experienced counselling and training staff as well as a graduate recruitment coordinator and careers assistant. Contact the Centre on 02 6125 3593 or visit us on the internet at careers.anu.edu.au

Chaplains

A multi-faith Chaplaincy Service is available to all ANU students, staff, their relations and visitors. The Chaplaincy Centre (T: 02 6125 4246) is located in the Students' Association Building in Union Court (near the Chifley Library). All people are welcome: any or no faith, any culture or lifestyle, any racial or ethnic background without discrimination.

The Chaplaincy team includes ordained and lay men and women, from many linguistic, cultural and education backgrounds. Chaplains offer confidential, emotional and spiritual support; referral to counselors or other professionals as required; discussion, information and advice on spiritual, ethical and religious issues; and special events and ministries. They care for the total person (and even have an officially accredited Tax Help Volunteer to assist with tax returns). They also provide, where possible, academic assistance, financial support and other support in kind.

The Quiet Room is available, on a regular or drop-in basis, to individuals or groups, for prayer, meditation or simply a safe place.

The Chaplaincy Centre is open from 10am to 4pm weekdays during term and for reduced hours as advertised in non-teaching periods. During the long vacation chaplains are available by special appointment.

Counselling Centre

The University Counselling Centre offers free confidential services to students to help with problems or difficulties that may adversely affect academic study. These may concern:

- academic work: motivation for study, ability to concentrate, writing blocks, examination anxiety, speaking in tutorials, time management, stress management
- difficult decisions: about study, career or personal life
- Communicating with others: social skills, public speaking, assertion, dealing with conflicts
- relationships: difficulties with boyfriend or girlfriend, spouse, friends, parents and other family members
- mental state: stress and tension, worry and anxiety, homesickness, depression, lack of confidence, grief, low self-esteem
- health-related problems: sleeplessness, eating disorders, drug abuse, difficulties arising from a disability
- life-crises: leaving home, unwanted pregnancy, bereavement, severe health problems, sexual abuse, separation and divorce.

Counselling is usually short-term and aims to increase understanding of the problem and to assist the individual to find effective solutions. Group programs are sometimes available on some of the above topics.

The Counselling Centre contact is 02 6125 2442. The Centre is located on the first floor of the Health and Counselling Centre Building, Building 18 in North Road, adjacent to the Sport and Recreation Association.

Dean of Students

The Dean of Students is a special role designed to give advice and assistance to students (both undergraduate and graduate) who are having trouble with any aspect of University. You should see the Dean of Students if you have:

- questions or difficulties about ANU Procedures or policies, and/or their application to you
- a grievance about treatment (either academic or personal) in the University
- any other issue confronting you or your fellow students.

The Dean can assist in communication between parts of the University and is in a position to convey broad student concerns to relevant committees of ANU. If you have an issue you need to raise, please make an appointment to discuss it with the Dean.

SIGN Mentoring Program

The Student Information and Guidance Network (SIGN) Mentoring Program

A program designed to assist new undergraduate students settle into university life. New undergraduates who register online with SIGN are allocated a later year student who acts as a voluntary SIGN Mentor – a specially trained guide – to help them with questions about life and study at ANU. The program runs for the first term of each semester, with a number of social activities organised, and plenty of free food available.

New graduate students on campus should contact the SIGN Coordinator about options that exist on campus to assist them when settling in. Further information about how to register for SIGN can be found on the internet at www.anu.edu.au/sign or contact the Coordinator either at ANU Information Centre In Union Court, via email sign@anu.edu.au or on 02 6125 6551.

Disability Services Unit

The University provides adjustments for students with disabilities and would appreciate knowing a student's needs as soon as it is possible. Applicants are requested to contact the Disability Services Unit as soon as possible to facilitate the provision of appropriate adjustments.

For information and advice about services for students with disabilities, contact the Disability Services Unit, Student Facilities Building.

International Education Office

The International Education Office (IEO) provides welfare and general support for all international students, offering advice on a range of issues. Below are some of the common issues students raise with us:

Before a student arrives

- schooling for children
- student visa conditions, including:
 - work rights
 - compulsory full-time study intensity
 - bringing immediate family to Australia
- accommodation advice – we will book temporary accommodation if required
- pre-departure briefings in Singapore and Malaysia
- a free meet and greet service (to download the form visit www.anu.edu.au/ieo/support/Request_to_be_met_form.html)

When a student arrives and while they are here

It is normal for international students arriving in a foreign country to feel anxious, particularly during the early weeks in their new environment. To assist students through this transition time, and to feel part of the wider local community, we offer the following:

- the International Student Orientation Program, which provides information on student services available at ANU, and about community organisations
- welcome lunch – Speech by The VC and a performance by an Aboriginal Dance Troupe
- for those student who arrive after orientation, a daily late arrival briefing session during the first three weeks of Semester 1, and the first two weeks of Semester 2
- Canberra bus tours
- pre-orientation campus tours and sausage sizzles
- welcome Bush Dance/ BBQ
- dinner tours of Canberra's restaurants
- academic performance monitoring and focus groups
- trips which aim to encourage social interaction between students and the local community, eg day trips to Berrima Fitzroy Falls, whale watching, Mt Kosciuszko, Blue Mountains, Sydney
- 12-day Inland trip in the Winter break
- Free, meet and greet service on arrival in Canberra
- University English Language Support programs for spouses/partners of students
- Friday ACTION Bus service to the Mosque during the teaching term
- Overseas Student Health Cover
- bi-semester e-newsletter
- volunteer program – students get involved in assisting the International Student Services and meet other students (both local and international)
- SIGN – The Student Information and Guidance Network Mentor Program; new students can register for a mentor to assist them in the transition to life at ANU. SIGN mentors could be local or international students; liaison with DIMIA on student visa matters as necessary
- referral to appropriate support services on- and off-campus
- advocacy and advice.

When a student is about to leave

It is also normal for students to feel anxious about going home and the IEO offers the following to help them adjust to returning.

- The Going Home Program provides information about reverse culture shock, freighting belongings home, Alumni, and other issues. All potential graduands will be sent a letter at the beginning of their last semester indicating things that they should be doing to complete their studies at ANU and in preparation for their return home. Once students have returned home we will send them a letter explaining the impact of reverse culture shock, along with contact details of the relevant Alumni.
- The Valedictory Celebration, a cocktail party where students and staff can mingle and celebrate the completion of their studies.

International Student Financial Assistance (ISFA)

International Student Financial Assistance (ISFA) is intended only for those continuing international students who find themselves in extreme financial hardship due to an unforeseen change in their financial circumstances. Applicants must provide evidence of real hardship that could put their continuing enrolment at the University in jeopardy. ISFA is not available to recently enrolled students nor for students who change their program. In accordance with Australian student visa requirements, it is the responsibility of all international students to plan for and to fund their tuition and living expenses.

The ISFA grant and loan schemes are for short-term financial assistance only.

For more information contact the Coordinator, International Student Services at the International Education Office.

Academic Skills and Learning Centre

The Academic Skills and Learning Centre specialises in helping students, including students of diverse language background, to improve their performance in the skills required for effective academic work. Any student who would like free and confidential assistance or advice in any of the following areas is welcome to contact the Centre.

Individual consultations

The ASLC assists with essay writing techniques, effective written communication, critical analysis, presenting a reasoned argument and/or aspects of style in academic writing.

It also offers assistance with academic reading, research and information gathering skills, planning the effective distribution of workloads, as well as preparing for tutorials and examinations. ASLC staff focus directly on the student's needs, using the student's current essays/assignments. Consultations are also available for Maths and Statistics.

Short courses, workshops and drop-in sessions

The ASLC offers regular courses, including Introduction to University Study and Essay Writing Essentials. StudySmart workshops cover topics such as time management, taking notes, referencing appropriately, academic reading, exam revision and strategies, tutorial participation, and argument and debate. Drop-in sessions are available for short queries (12 – 1pm Monday to Friday).

The ASLC also provides specialist sessions/workshops on request in the ANU Colleges, including Honours seminars. A half-day Introduction to Honours Study Workshop is held regularly to assist new and continuing Honours students with a wide range of Honours-specific academic skills and learning issues.

Electronic resources

The ASLC website www.anu.edu.au/academicsskills has a range of resources including: Managing Your Study Time; Preparation and Presentations for Tutorials; Writing Laboratory Reports and Essays; Doing Honours; Preparing for Exams; Writing a Literature Review; Referencing; and Learning Languages.

Contacting the Centre

Students may make an appointment by dropping in or telephoning the ASLC on 02 6125 2972. The ASLC website www.anu.edu.au/academicsskills provides more detailed information about ASLC services, including current courses. Located on the lower ground floor of the Pauline Griffin Building, Building 11, the ASLC is open weekdays throughout the year, including non-teaching and semester breaks. Special arrangements can be made in terms of access or appointments for students with disabilities or work/family commitments.

University Health Service

The University Health Service provides medical services to ANU staff and students. ANU students are bulk billed through either Medicare or OSHC (Overseas Student Health Cover). Health Care Cards are encouraged. ANU Staff are charged at a discounted rate. The spouses and children of international students are eligible for bulk-billed services under OSHC. Children and spouses who share a Health Care Card with an ANU student (ie demonstrated need and evidence of formal shared living arrangements) will be eligible for bulk billing.

All others, including the spouses and children of all other University students and staff, are eligible for services but will be charged at the full rate of $65 for a standard consultation.

Services

- male and female doctors
- a nurse available for health advice, and to manage the nursing duties within the health service.

We cover all areas of general practice, including:

- routine vaccinations for overseas travel available after consultation with doctor. Routine childhood and adult immunisations
- women's health and routine pap smears
- contraceptive advice and counselling
- antenatal shared care
- men's health and regular medicals

- wart clinic
- skin care and mole checks
- minor surgical procedures, such as mole excision, suturing of cuts, ingrown toenails, contraceptive hormone implants
- management of minor burns and sports injuries
- smoking cessation counselling
- psychological problems (with referral to ANU Counselling Service if required)
- STD checks
- drug and alcohol related issues
- medicals for diving/employment etc (not generally covered by Medicare).

Making an appointment

Appointments can be made in person or by telephone on 02 6125 3598. It is advisable to make an appointment prior to attending. If you attend without an appointment and your matter is not urgent, you may be required to make an appointment at a later time or date.

As demand for an appointment is high, please let the health service know as soon as possible if you are unable to keep a scheduled appointment. Patients who repeatedly fail to attend or do not inform health service staff that they are unable to attend an appointment may incur a fee.

Students are required to bring a current Student card, Medicare card or Medibank Private/or Worldcare ASSIST card when attending for consultation.

ANU Students' Association

The Australian National University Students' Association (ANUSA) is the representative body of undergraduate students on campus. If you are an undergraduate student at ANU, then ANUSA is your student voice. ANUSA consists of a number of elected students who present student issues to the University Council, to Faculty Boards and on other official committees. ANUSA also represents student issues outside the campus, organise social events and activism on campus, plus providing some student services which are not provided by the University (such as free legal and welfare advice). If an issue needs to be raised, or something about university life needs to be changed, or problems need to be talked through, ANUSA can help.

ANUSA objectives are outlined in our Constitution. ANUSA is a non-profit organisation, which aims to:

- promote the welfare and further the interests of its members, in particular to work for quality and equity in higher education
- to afford a recognised means of representation for its members both within and outside the University
- to promote the social life of its members.

ANUSA's office is located in Building 17, above the Commonwealth Bank in Union Court. Office hours are 9am - 5pm weekdays almost all year round. The staff are a really friendly group of people (most of the time!). Members can come in and meet representatives, read a magazine, buy textbooks secondhand. Or get free legal advice, free tax help and Centrelink advice, get a student representative to advocate for your problem. Members can also get involved with all sorts of ANUSA activities, or just drop in for free tea, a student diary and a comfy couch.

ANU Union

The ANU Union offers a wide variety of services to provide for members' needs. The ground floor of the building is largely occupied by the Refectory which is a food hall area occupied by Deli Delite (gourmet fococcia's, turkish pides, wraps, sandwiches, fruit, drinks etc), Organix (healthy fare including quiches, fruit salad), Cucina de Pasta (pizzas, pastas, salads) and Plowmans (chips, fried chicken, fish, burgers and more). Next door to the JB Chifley Library The Coffee Shop offers you great coffee and taste treats. The Uni Bar and Games Room are located at the Sullivans Creek end of the building with the Union Shop, Post Office and Resources Centre occupying the city end. You can buy stationery, newspapers, magazines, souvenirs, academic robes and clothing at the shop, plus it offers a dry cleaning and photographic service. The Post Office processes passports as well as offering the normal postal services and you can do your own photocopying, binding and laminating in the Resources Centre where passport photos can be taken. Also situated on the ground floor are a bakery, supermarket and cycle hire and repair shop.

The first floor of the building is occupied by the Asian Bistro, Bar, Pajenka's Café and the Union's Admin Offices (including the Functions Sales Office, Degree Coffee Lounge, Ticketek Agency, Computer Shop, Optometrist, Enigma@ANU hair salon and Dental Surgery). The Bridge lounge area is located across Sullivan's Creek and is an ideal spot for members to watch their favourite television shows, have a game of snooker or just relax.

The Uni Bar opens at 12pm and closes at 10pm Monday to Thursday; later on Fridays when there is a free concert for students and on Saturdays when live bands often perform. Big name bands often perform in the Refectory and Bar areas; these are advertised on the notice board at the Refectory entrance. The Games Room is open from 8.30am to Bar closing time for those wishing to relax over a game of snooker, darts or other amusements, including the latest pinball machines.

The Asian Bistro opens from 12-2pm Monday to Friday.

Pajenka's Café is open from 7.30am–7.30pm Monday to Friday for breakfast, lunch, dinner and in-between snacks.

The ANU Union has several function rooms available for events large and small; ANU Union also caters for outside seminars, conferences, weddings etc. Contact the Functions Manager is on T: 02 6125 2004.

Sport and Recreation Association

Following the recent Introduction of Voluntary Student Unionism across Australia on 1 July 2006, University students are no longer required to pay annual General Services Fee levies for student services. Even though this is now the case, all students attending ANU continue to automatically remain members of the Sport and Recreation Association (ANUSRA) by virtue of enrolment. University staff, graduates of tertiary institutions, and students from other tertiary Institutions may also currently apply to become members of ANUSRA at a cost of $99 per annum (2007).

Sport and recreation activities are organised through the efforts of members and staff, and policy decisions are made by the Sport and Recreation Council. This Council is made up of elected members and University-appointed representatives.

The following clubs are affiliated to the Sport and Recreation Association: aikido, Australian football, basketball, badminton, boat, caving, cricket, fencing, men's and women's hockey, indoor hockey, judo, jujitsu, kendo, mountaineering, netball, rugby union, sailing, scuba, ski and snowboard, men's and women's soccer, table tennis, tennis, tae kwon do, tennis, touch, ultimate disc, volleyball, weight training and Yu Shih Tao kung fu.

Facilities that are available for use include two multi purpose sports halls, a multi purpose room, climbing walls, a dojo, two squash courts, 10 tennis courts, four ovals, rowing and sailing sheds, a heavy weights room, a fitness centre with available fitness assessment, a cardio theatre, and a circuit training room.

In excess of 40 sport and recreation programs are organised by ANUSRA each year providing classes such as posture and flexibility, yoga, dance, martial arts, pole dancing and much more.

An extensive lunchtime sport program is conducted with the emphasis on participation and enjoyment.

Student members may also represent ANU in numerous inter-University sporting competitions held throughout the year.

The daily operations are the responsibility of an Executive Officer, Facilities Manager, Sport Promotions Manager and Coordinator, Fitness Manager, Fitness Consultant, Administration Assistant and Member Services Officers. These staff can be contacted through Reception on 02 6125 2273.

All Sport and Recreation Association members may join in on any of the activities organised by ANUSRA or its affiliated clubs. If a student requires further information on activities or becoming a member, please contact staff on T: 02 6125 2273, E: sports.union@anu.edu.au or on the web at www.anu.edu.au/sport

Child care

Heritage Early Childhood Centre

Heritage Early Childhood Centre is a community-based daycare centre run by a management committee of elected parents.
